

Southern New England Stumpage Price Report

First quarter, 2016

Comments:

The mills are still buying but prices are struggling, especially the softwood. Now with the easy winter and warm weather the price for firewood wholesale had to be dropped. Cycle is what it is.

Have heard chip prices down... not that it's a big "money maker" for a landowner anyway... Landowners need to understand that "biomass/pulp" and firewood products are not going to make a landowner rich

Landowners should more highly value the tsi aspect of unloading those low end value forest products... with or without cost share.

Lower oil prices obviously correlate to lower demand for firewood lately.
